Postage paid anywhere in the United States. Remittance should be sent with order from unknown customers, or satisfactory references. During very cold weather, we will hold orders and send bulbs as soon as weather conditions are safe against severe frost. No substitutes or changes will be made unless desired. As stock of some varieties are very limited, we suggest early orders.

THE GLADIOLUS AND ITS CULTURE

In addition to its great beauty, the gladioli are becoming more popular on account of their ease of culture. The gladiolus will thrive in almost any good garden soil, but seems at its best in soils that are more or less sandy. Well rotted manure is the best fertilizer to use on average soil; dry ground sheep guano is excellent; fresh manure should not be used unless it has been worked into the soil the fall before planting time. Generally speaking, handle your soil for planting exactly the same as for vegetable growing.

Plant the bulbs from 4 to 6 inches deep; heavy soils 4 inches and light soils 6 inches deep. Plant about 6 inches apart in the row; the rows should be at least 18 inches apart, so as to make it convenient for cultivating. Give them plenty of cultivation which will repay one well in the finer flowers secured through thorough cultivation

The first planting may be made in the spring as soon as the ground is warm and in good workable condition. If a succession of blooms are desired throughout the summer, new plantings should be made about 10 days after the foliage of the previous planting shows through the ground and additional plantings until the last week in June.

If the flowers are intended for indoor use, the spike should be cut as soon as the first bud opens, the balance of the buds will open when placed in water to the tip of the stalk; a small part of the bottom of the stalk should be cut off each day and fresh water used, they will last a week or ten days when treated in this way.

Care must be used when cutting the spike so as to leave as much foliage as possible on the plant. This is necessary if the bulb is intended to be saved and planted another season. Most so called worn out bulbs are from plants from which too much foliage has been removed.

The bulbs may be lifted as soon as they show signs of turning brown or have been hit by heavy frost. The tops may be removed at digging time and the bulbs should be allowed to dry before storing away for the winter. Any cool dry place that is suitable for keeping potatoes will do well for bulbs.
